Large Amount Of Foodstuffs Go To Britain

Products, Exclusive Of Wheat, With Total Value Of $105,741,000 Are To Be Exported Overseas

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced in the House of Commons today that Great Britain during the next year will take Canadian food products, exclusive of wheat, with a total value of $105,741,000.

The agriculture minister, just returned from a visit to the United Kingdom, where he concluded new agreements with the United Kingdom, announced that Britain will take Canada's entire surplus of Whitefish sales estimated at 425,000,000 pounds and certain pork products with a total net value to Canada of $69,300,000.

LOWER WHEAT CARRYOVER IN FUTURE SEEN

Consumption, Exports To Keep Total Down In Next Five Years

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner today predicted that during the next five years Canada's total wheat production will exceed its total consumption and export value by not more than 100,000,000 bushels.

Average production would be 200,000,000 bushels a year, as a total of 1,900,000,000 in five years, he said. Canada would consume domestically 160,000,000 bushels a year, or a total of 800,000,000 bushels.

Exports to the United Kingdom would total another 800,000,000 bushels, figuring that Canada would continue to supply 100,000,000 bushels a year or approximately 70 per cent of Britain's overseas requirements.

"Assuming two years of blockade and then three years of offensive warfare or peace," Canada would produce a surplus of 2,000,000,000 bushels, leaving a carryover at the end of five years of roughly 1,000,000,000 bushels.

However, Mr. Gardiner added, if Canada continued to sell to 30,000,000 a year to countries outside Europe which were not blockaded, there would be a surplus at the end of five years of the domestic market of 20,000,000 more than the carryover.

"It is not unlikely, therefore, that Canadian wheat production will be plentiful," he said. "The difficulty was the financing of the wheat, which would have to be carried."

FINANCING IS PROBLEM

Taranto's Again Hit By British

Berlin Also Bombed By R.A.F. During Wide-spread Night Air Assaults.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(BUP)—The air ministry said British planes last night bombed a railway station in the heart of Berlin with British Russian Premier V. M. Molotov was to have boarded a train for home today, and that British fliers again bombed the harbor and docks of Taranto, scene of Monday night's attack on the Italian navy.

The raid on Taranto, in the heart of the Italian bay, was made by bombers from the Royal Air Force middle east command Wednesday night and was successful, the air ministry said. On Monday night the air arm had bombed the harbor and docks of Taranto, scene of Monday night's attack on the Italian navy.

The Jervis Bay

The facts have been disclosed as to the attack by a German pocket battleship on a convoy of merchant ships in mid-Atlantic last week. They are bad, but far less bad than were once suspected. Eight ships were apparently sunk by the raider, but 20 escaped, and some of the missing may yet turn up. Berlin's claim that the entire convoy was destroyed thus contained about the usual admixture of truth and falsehood.

The encounter was a converted merchantman, a freighter which had been provided with such guns as its structure would permit, necessarily of small calibre. The commander and crew were not trained in the fire tradition British seamen have built up through the centuries. They attacked the raider, knowing they were not gunned and doomed, fought till the ship sank under them, and so gave the convoy time to scatter. But for their heroic action few of the convoy vessels could have escaped. Berlin's "premature" announcement that they were all destroyed might even have been true.

The conduct of the Jervis Bay outbalanced the loss of eight merchant ships and their cargoes. To friend and foe it proclaimed there is nothing so noble as the courage of the British and Canadian naval forces. And "hats off" to Captain Sven Olander, who stuck around until darkness fell, then went back and picked up the survivors of the Jervis Bay.

Edmonton's New Council

Twenty-five per cent only of the qualified electors went to the polling places yesterday and helped to choose Edmonton's council for the coming year. There is no reason to suppose those voting did not represent a fair cross-section of the citizenry, and had the vote been larger the result would presumably have been substantially the same.

The voters broke the three-year-old tradition to return Mayor Fry for a fourth consecutive term. This signal honor is one which His Worship has never before received. It is a direct and emphatic verdict of general approval of the service he has rendered, and the confidence that equally satisfactory service will be given during the year ahead.

All seven aldermanic candidates running under the banner of the Citizens' Committee were elected, by their own admission, and came was rather to be expected, because the election campaign failed to produce any such strong issue as to not represent the voters. A good deal of the credit must go to the council of the year just ending, in which the committee representative held a majority. Had their council been defeated, the result would have been different.

The campaign was marked by a lack of public interest, at the small number of voters. Fortunately there were few incidents of an unpleasant character, none of a likely to cause a factional feud. The voting over, the newly chosen council will represent a fair cross-section of the citizenry, and the outlook for a year of harmony and co-operation between council and the citizens generally.

Taranto

An important section of Signor Mussolini's latest first-year yearling has been the quiet life when it dropped anchor off the bay of Taranto. A flock of planes from the Italian air arm loomed above the city and attacked them. When they were seen to be attacking, three or four battleships were wrecked, three or four others ended rebuilding, and some of the vessels were sunk. The planes likely enough came from the Ark Royal, which Herr Goebbels sank three weeks ago when the war was young and his boasts credible. The planes likely enough broke the coverings away like an insect on a fly.

So far before has a squadron of warships small or large suffered a comparable disaster in an attack by airmen. The airplane has been used in a singularly unsuccessful way when it comes to attacking a fleet of battleships. The planes likely enough broke the coverings away like an insect on a fly.

It makes more precarious the position of the Italian fleet. Greece, too, may depend on unbroken communication with Italy for reinforcements and supplies. If it comes to a point where the Italian sea route by which Greece must be supplied is cut off, the Italian fleet will be in a perilous position. It is a perilous position, and it is a perilous position.

No less important, it will cause Italy to be in a perilous position. It is a perilous position, and it is a perilous position.

A "Loyal Opposition"
Of all forms of government, political democracy is the most delicately balanced, the most demanding of a certain temper, and the most exacting of its adherents. It is the form of government which creates the instruments for its own destruction. This fact was discovered long ago, long before the modern "revolution" was perfected the technique of destroying democracy. The Roman Republic had its Catiline, who knew just about as much as we know of the modern "revolution" as Catiline. William Pitt's brilliant little essay on Catiline in "Twelve Against the Gods" does not read like very ancient history.

The possibility of maintaining a political democracy in the long run depends upon the continual striking of a balance between parties and between interests. If any party becomes so powerful that the minority is unable to find a hearing at all, or if any group of interests becomes so powerful that it can flout the popular will, democracy cannot survive. Aristotle has set forth the reasons with complete clarity in his "Politics." Democracy, he says, cannot survive against either an immensely powerful economic oligarchy of the rich, or against an immensely powerful oligarchy of the poor. For the former is unwilling to accept any discipline from the government and the latter is perennially inclined to use the political machinery for exploitation. Democracy, therefore, depends for its very life upon a strong and intelligent "middle."

The tendency of the economic oligarchy to merge with the political oligarchy is a mass of a character of revolutionary assaults upon democracy from the right. This is the technique of Fascism, or the oligarchy, if it can keep control of the economic power, is confident that it can afford to ignore the masses. Whether or not it will be successful in the long run is highly questionable. Communism is a revolutionary assault upon democracy from the left. It is the technique of Communism, or the oligarchy, if it can keep control of the economic power, is confident that it can afford to ignore the masses. Whether or not it will be successful in the long run is highly questionable.

The strategy of Communism is to increase the power of the masses, who they call the proletariat. By this means, they hope to bring about a revolution. The strategy of Communism is to increase the power of the masses, who they call the proletariat. By this means, they hope to bring about a revolution.

The article in either Communist or Fascist line is only one; the gradual abolition of the proletariat, by securing in many ways the mitigation of their insecurity. The article in either Communist or Fascist line is only one; the gradual abolition of the proletariat, by securing in many ways the mitigation of their insecurity.

Political democracy can exist only in the modern world. The modern world is the only world in which the masses have the power. The modern world is the only world in which the masses have the power. The modern world is the only world in which the masses have the power.

The object of a democracy should therefore be to make political democracy a reality. The object of a democracy should therefore be to make political democracy a reality. The object of a democracy should therefore be to make political democracy a reality.

The democratic aim must be pursued, and pursued by both parties, if democracy is to be a reality. The democratic aim must be pursued, and pursued by both parties, if democracy is to be a reality. The democratic aim must be pursued, and pursued by both parties, if democracy is to be a reality.

Curious as it may seem, in the main current of all democracies, divided as they are into parties, there must be points of contact between them. Curious as it may seem, in the main current of all democracies, divided as they are into parties, there must be points of contact between them.

From the summit of this steep bank, looking down, I see a white fleet of clouds drifting on in the distance. The ocean below is still, a dark floor tilted against the bright vault of the sky. The sea is not a movement anywhere of the business of men. Far below on the beach, where the children play and the summer men, endless coils of bodies, are to be seen. It is a body in sight where the fun used to be.

Acid Test of Nerves

SINCE the Bears haven't played anyone yet, I can't give you a pre-season report on how the Flors are likely to shape up against the "Purrs" Valley Oilers in the opening game of the Alberta Senior Hockey League here Saturday night, but I can report on the state of their nerves and courage.

Last night I saw the entire club put through a test of nerve control and intellectual fortitude that has made many a strong and brave man turn pale, stuttering and trembling as he faced one of the most diabolical contrivances of modern science—the radio microphone.

This took place in the studio of CFRN as Dave Hill put over a hockey rally. Practically every Flory and most of the executives of the club sat around the studio and heartily watched he was somewhere else as he waited for his turn to step up to that deadly little mike. Some of the boys whispered "wasn't that a little bit too much?" but that was just to cover up.

President Ira Stuart led off. Ira has had considerable experience with microphones as his technique was expertly watched. He broke fast from his chair and rubbed the mike with his shirt and change of just just as Dave Hill frantically grabbed the contraption out of his way. Having put the thing to flight and established moral superiority, Ira relaxed and grinned. From then on he had no more trouble.

Captain G. Keefe was the first player to go into weak action and he handled the mike just the same way he plays hockey—smoothly and easily. It didn't seem to bother him at all. In fact I am beginning to suspect that this Floryman may have the makings of a master of ceremonies hidden in his system.

Walt McIntire, hefty new defenseman, kept shifting in front of the mike and you could see at a glance that he was set to throw a smashing bodycheck into the contraption if it came an inch nearer to him.

Patrick Ripley Mullen stepped up boldly and looked the mike squarely in the eye. Afterward he admitted he was wishing he was looking one of his workmen in the eye down on the farm near Miles instead of that electrical gadget, but you'd never guess it from his demeanor.

Morrison Clan Saved

FOR a minute or two everyone held their breath when Jack Morrison of the Flors executive was called on. Jack had a bad cold and hesitantly refused to take a chance on his vocal cords before the mike. Dave Hill thought maybe Jack was just a bit bashful and took a step out where Jack was seated, but the latter stood up at his policy of silence. Bill Morrison, however, saved the day for the Morrison clan by stepping up like a good railroader and flinging down his policy of silence, a nice crisp little talk.

Ducky Skinner had coughed up something or other judging from the way he kept squinting around on his chair and grinning to himself, but what ever it was was short all in pieces when Dave started snoring him about where he picked up the name of "Ducky." Skinner must have known—says it just sort of grew up with him.

"Did you ever take a look at yourself walking down the street?" McIntire demands in a stage whisper that probably didn't reach the folks over the air waves but which certainly completed the discomfort and rest of Ducky.

Finally the finger of fate landed on Bert Crockett. He squared his bulging jaw and muttered something up to the tiny little "Micro" holding an eye, he answered all the questions fired at him—bold and sure. The new N.H.L. style goal net that has been installed at the Arena described the cage that has been provided for the protection of goal judges and announced that a massive new four-footed brick would soon be installed over centre ice. After he was safely out of the studio, Bert mopped perspiration off his brow and admitted that he would rather stand on his head in front of 6,000 people at the Arena than face the microphone.

The Flors forward all got along pretty well and then the gang appeared for a quick little dinner to serve after the boys' nerves as they would get in along with nothing but trivial dangers such as the Oilers, Leafs and Stampedes in better shape.

But I really must tell you about the trick that Walt McIntire can do with a quarter. He has wrists like an elephant's foot. He clenches his fist with his wrist turned so his pulse is up. Then he lays the quarter on it, contracts his wrist muscles and the contraction flips the quarter over as slick as anything you ever saw. Have him do it for you the next time you run into him.

THE RIVER OF PAPER. The only spot in the world where paperus still grows is on the shores of the Anapu river near Syracuse, Sicily, Italy. It is extinct in its native country. Egypt. It has a very romantic history. Henry II, King of Sicily, sent an expedition ship full of gifts to King Pharaoh of Egypt. In return the Egyptian king sent the Sicilians the seeds of the paperus plant. The seeds were planted at the order of the king near the river where they still grow, while the Sicilians know them as moss.

Wrigley Cuts Hartnett Adrift After 19 Years With Chicago Cubs

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Gabby Hartnett, who for 19 straight years carried his big red face, but and chest protector to the plate for Chicago Cubs of the National Baseball League, came to the end of the road with that team Wednesday. His contract as Cub manager, said Owner P. K. Wrigley, will not be renewed when it expires Dec. 31.

Big Squad Seeking Golden Bear Sweaters

A strong hockey team as ever were the green and gold for the University of Alberta in the offering for the coming season. If present turnouts for Golden Bears practice mean anything, At Wednesday afternoon's workout at the Arena, Coach Stan Moher had well over two full teams of high-grade hockey ivory.

Indications point to a fast-skating team, with very little, if any body-checking defense system. Bud Foley, Pat Costigan and Mageste Santopinto, defencemen with the club, all are good blockers, while all forward prospects are fast-skating and are already working up some smart passing plays.

Stan Moher is particularly pleased with the fine turnout of freshmen this year and anticipates difficulty in choosing his team from among so many equally-qualified players.

Newcomers trying for a berth with the team this year include G. Brimacombe, Jim Taylor, from Stettler; Jack Minchin, from Grande Prairie; K. Clayton, Calgary; J. MacDougall, Moose Jaw; Bob Schneider, Olds; H. Haverstock, Camrose; and Bill Gray, Yorkton. All are prospective forwards. Harry Lepp, who last year starred for the Alberta in the intercollegiate league, is trying for goal position on the team.

Members of last year's team met with the club again including Bob Torrance in goal, and Pat Costigan and M. Santopinto on defense; and the forwards, Bud Cheney, Ed Crowder, Gordon Darling and George Stuart.

Earl Lane, a member of the Bears of several years back, is also out trying for a berth on the club.

Canadians Want Midget Players

The Canadian Athletic Clubs entry in the Edmonton Midget Hockey League will hold its first meeting of the season tonight at the Edmonton Arena, with the starting time set for 8:30 p.m. An invitation to attend this practice is extended to all young players in the city desirous of catching a game with this club. The club, who played with the New York Rangers last winter, and Clarence Moher, who has devoted many years towards the promotion of minor hockey in the city, will be in charge of the workout.

BEARS MAY PLAY HUSKIES SATURDAY

With warmer weather in the offing, there is a possibility that the return football game between the U. of A. Golden Bears and the U. of S. Huskies may be played this weekend in Saskatoon. According to the original plan, following the postponement of the scheduled game at the U. of S. home ground last Saturday, the Alberta team has left for Saskatoon for a game Nov. 17, providing the weather was favorable.

Increased interest in the ultimate of western intercollegiate football supremacy as a result of the refusal of the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds to play the Alberta team, has left both the U. of S. and the U. of A. clubs eager to settle the matter between themselves.

Regardless of whether or not the game is played this Saturday in Saskatoon the Alberta club, through James Patton, physical director, is contacting Dr. C. A. Hardy, donor of the trophy, for a ruling on the question of who will hold the trophy for this season on the basis of the present developments.

Predicts Stampede Will Take Some Beating

CALGARY, Nov. 14.—(CP)—Now that Calgary has won its first western senior hockey championship, Coach Marty Burke and his Stampedeers are determined to keep a tight grasp on the title.

Burke, for 11 years a National Hockey League star with Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks, is notoriously the silent type.

Marty guided Stampedeers to the western championship in his first season at Calgary with a minimum of talk but perhaps the shrewdest Calgary coach from Kirkland Lake, B.C. Devils in the Allan Cup final.

At any rate, Burke frankly admits he expects great things from Stampedeers this season. The fact he qualifies the statement with the opinion it will be some time before they swing into high gear takes little from its significance.

"It will be several weeks before Stampedeers hit their true form and function smoothly as a hockey machine," Burke said.

Stampedeers success will depend mostly on the development of their youngsters who have been added to the roster—Albert McQuillan, of Medicine Hat; Bob Koch, of Strathmore; and Jack Quigley, Calgary boy who was with University of Toronto last winter.

MAKES PREDICTION

Then Burke added what for him was a sensational prediction: "We will have a much stronger defence and if the youngsters add punch to the attack, Stampedeers will take some beating."

A glance at the lineup proves this.

EDMONTON CLUB WILL GIVE HELP TO NEW CURLERS

Of interest to new curlers is the announcement that the Edmonton Curling Club is getting on a "school" for those who wish to take a start at the curling game, or at least to learn what it's all about.

Most important of the things in curling is a proper beginning. While the "start" will be run into sooner or later.

In the first place the game is governed by a set of rules. There is a correct way to get down in the back. Probably most important of all is the proper method to deliver a rock, but in addition to this the handle must be learned, how to give the "in" and "out" and the "sweep" about "getting the broom" over the skip's sign, etc. Many who might have turned out to be top-notch curlers have either been spoiled or discouraged by the club simply by not having had the advantage of good tuition at the beginning.

The Edmonton club is to be complimented on providing advice for the newcomers. The club has a team of experienced curlers who will be available to help out and will be available to all interested curlers. No coach salary.

McCormick of Reds National's Most Valued

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Frank McCormick, first baseman for the world champion Cincinnati Reds, was the National League's most valuable player in 1940, a committee for the Baseball Writers' Association of America announced Wednesday.

He hit .300 and drove in 127 runs, compared with a batting average of .322 and 138 runs batted in in 1939.

Last year he was rated fourth in the annual vote by 24 veteran baseball writers, three from each National League city. This year he was first, getting 16 of the 24 votes for the place and 274 points, 60 more than Johnny Mize, the slugging first sacker of St. Louis Cardinals, who was second in 1939.

The reason for the loss of McCormick in contention of the figure in the record books is easily apparent. Last year the Reds captured the pennant on marvellous pitching, but this year their batting was less effective and they relied on tight defensive play and the ability to punch across runs at the right time.

This was where McCormick figured—the best defensive first baseman in the league, second only to Mize in runs batted in, the leader in double plays and the leader in total hits. He gave the Reds their pennant punch.

Third Red To Win Honor

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(CP)—Cincinnati Reds may or may not have a monopoly on the National League pennant but they appear to have a strong hold on the current most valuable player award.

Frank McCormick, who the Baseball Writers' Association of America announced Wednesday as their selection for the 1940 award, was the third Cincinnati player in as many years to win the honor. The hard-hitting first baseman followed

DUTTON THINKS PAT EGAN GOOD AS EDDIE SHORE

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(CP)—Red Dutton brought his New York Americans to town Wednesday to open the National Hockey League season at Madison Square Garden tonight against Chicago Black Hawks, and immediately began sing the praises of his young defenseman, Pat Egan.

"A second shore absolutely," was Dutton's description of the boy brought up from Springfield, Ill., to fill the place left vacant by the retirement of game little Al Murray.

Martin Joseph (Pat) Egan was born at Blackville, N.D. Last year Dutton brought him up to the N.H.L. for two games and he scored three goals against Toronto, the manager said. He is one of the six newcomers to the American who last year, with a squad of amateurs, battled their way into the playoffs, losing to Detroit in the opening round.

Dutton declines to predict how well his club will go this year. "I've got a squad of youngsters and will go along with them," he said. "They have enough spots. They have to break in. But they've got ability."

He was talking about Steve Stolz, Eddie Shore, Bill Bennett, Winnipeg.

WAR WORK TO BE REVIEWED AT CITY MEET

Co-Ordination of Various Services is Object of Conference

Preliminary meeting for discussion of co-ordination of war-work campaigns in Edmonton will be held at the city hall, Nov. 15, 10 p.m.

Reg. T. Rose told executive members of the Edmonton Council for the Co-ordination of Auxiliary War Services, meeting in the Madam hotel Wednesday afternoon, that Rose presided at the meeting.

Nine organizations, comprising the I.O.O.F., Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Salvation Army, Knights of Columbus, Canadian Legion, Navy League of Canada, Council of Social Agencies and Chamber of Commerce have been invited to name two delegates each to the meeting to be held during the next week.

The campaign for war-work to be discussed will take place within the next twelve months.

LIBRARIES

Edmonton Auxiliary Service Office for M.D. 13, Capt. Fred Crombie, head of Calgary, attended the meeting and gave a report on the recent formation in Ottawa of a National Library Council to provide permanent libraries at the various training centres across Canada.

He stated that the council has been secured from the Dominion Government of $40 per month for each training centre.

It was proposed by Capt. Crombie that the National Library Council be organized. Hugh Garfield, librarian at the Edmonton public library, was named as the person to be in charge of the local committee, and invited to state the plans and plans of the committee.

The Edmonton Council for Auxiliary War Services will co-operate with the local committee.

Reports of the entertainment and dependent services committees were presented to the conveners, Mrs. T. B. T. Hewitt and Mrs. E. P. Wellwood, respectively. Mrs. Wellwood reported complaints received regarding the inadequate housing conditions in the city and it was decided to have a meeting with the city council, which is already investigating the question.

NAMED TO EXECUTIVE

H. Stinchbury, Squidder, Leader Laidlaw, R.C.A.F., Mr. H. A. Black and Mrs. W. J. Dick were named to the executive of the War Service Council. Leonard G. E. P. Shaver, officer commanding, R.C.M.P., Edmonton, will be invited to join the executive.

Mrs. E. P. Wellwood was named to organize a meeting of all auxiliaries to the C.A.S.F. for the planning of a joint Christmas party for the children of the men on active service or with local units.

It was pointed out that the Council for Auxiliary War Services would call the meeting, but take no part in the actual arrangements for the party, which would be planned by the various auxiliaries themselves. It was felt that a joint effort would ensure better results than would be obtained by separate efforts.

During 1939 Americans ate 275,000,000 gallons of ice cream and 2,000,000,000 gallons of assorted ice.

Your Baby And Mine

By MIRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The child who lies, when he is of the age to be moved by reason and who knows fact from fancy, must be corrected of fantasizing the truth because it serves some satisfaction purpose in his life. The source of this satisfaction the mother can discover by hunting for the source of her child's daily life. There is some unhappiness or lying would not be needed.

The child of eight who is causing her mother much grief because of her untrue stories would seem to be suffering from some personal sense of inferiority. This mother writes, "She carries tales, and makes up stories which will get some other child into trouble. She went to one of my friends and told her that her daughter had been pushed by another child. The mother went to the mother of the child who pushed, and told her that the tale was pure invention. Then they came and had it out with me. In all kinds of ways but none on headway. She said a bad child; in fact, in other ways she is all a mother could wish for."

If she felt very sure of your friends' estimate of her as a nice little girl, she wouldn't have to make up stories to share their faith in the niceness of other children. Obviously, she is most unhappy when her popularity and because this makes her unhappy she tries to even up her even disadvantage by telling stories which will get other children at a disadvantage.

Why not the popular? Does the play with children or does she always want to be the lone as many other children don't making up stories to impress other people is a very frequent thing. It is a self defence in public esteem. The point is, why does she have to do this unless she is not so pretty or talented or at least feels herself less than other children of her own age.

She can help her by giving her the ammunition for feeling on her own with other children. Build up her self-esteem by praising her. Develop any talent she has, such as dancing or singing or painting. She will be helped, also, if mothers will not get so excited about her about little tales. Parents are also common-place an offense about which to make so much talk. Since she enjoys the excitement her stories arouse, if they are accepted without interest, there is less incentive to think them up.

For the present the only punishment, other than an explanation, is to place an offense about which to make so much talk. Since she enjoys the excitement her stories arouse, if they are accepted without interest, there is less incentive to think them up.

Dorothy Dix Says: Bulletin Patterns

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to be married to a girl who is a splendid person and I love her very much. There are many points about which we disagree. We are always fighting about those points and she is always right. I am always wrong. I am always fighting about those points and she is always right. I am always wrong. I am always fighting about those points and she is always right. I am always wrong.

Amor—Well, of course, if you want to find a girl who is an absolute rubber stamp of yourself and who has exactly the same ideas and tastes and point of view as you have, you are liable to be an old bachelor. The difference is that a girl who is an absolute rubber stamp of yourself and who has exactly the same ideas and tastes and point of view as you have, you are liable to be an old bachelor.

There is a man's world and a woman's world into which the other never enters. No man ever understands why a woman does as she does with him, and no woman ever comprehends why a man does the way he does.

No man knows why a woman does as she does with him, and no woman ever comprehends why a man does the way he does. No man knows why a woman does as she does with him, and no woman ever comprehends why a man does the way he does.

And you know that when a husband and wife differ in their tastes, they nearly always compromise by the husband doing what the wife wants to do.

Still and all, it is very important that a husband and wife should be congenial and I doubt extremely that any married couple are ever happy who do not have the same politics and religion and like the same kind of pie. The people we love and with whom we live are those who never say, "and those with whom we have to argue every point."

In your particular case you might give up your swimming and the girl might give up her dancing without too much sacrifice. But when it comes to your liking people and her wanting to be alone and not being a mixer, it is a different matter. That is a difference in their characters and it will take a lot of love to bridge that gap between you.

What To Do

I have a girl friend who seems to enjoy my company, but who makes a point of telling me uncomplimentarily remarks others have said about me. She never fails to tell me to behave like water. She even tells me to be as friendly with boys as I can. I am seriously considering giving up her friendship.

MISS G. M. F.
Answer—This girl evidently feels a little inferior to you and giving you advice makes her feel important. It may be that the best thing to do is to break up this friendship. This is a very difficult decision, but practice turning the other cheek. Find as many nice things about her as you can. Then compliment her on them. The next time she gives you a compliment, thank her and give her a compliment. This will show her that you are not so inferior to her as she thinks.
